A community which is blessed with cleanliness is also blessed with a cholera preventive.

People like to pay well for laughing. Mark Twain's net income for his readings last winter was $35,000.

The country is at last gratified that polygamy can't fool with the United States' law without getting hurt.

New departures are certainly taking place. The Rev. Allen Wright, a Choctaw Indian has been elected president of the Union theological seminary in New York.

Colonel Vilas says the administration is very popular. Judging by the opinions of those who have got appointments we presume it is; but we haven't seen many words of praise coming from other directions.

Wendell Phillips made many thousands of dollars by his lectures and his books, but he was a generous man, was exceedingly liberal in his gifts to the poor, and his estate has been appraised at only $5,462.

Miss Fortesque, who received $30,000 for her lacerated heart from Lord Garmonie, will soon marry a newspaper reporter. The newspaper reporter, who seldom seldoms knew what he was about when he urged Miss Fortesque to bring suit against Lord Garmonie.

Public Printer Rounds has been informed by a democrat in high authority that he will not be disturbed by his term expires; and also that the president was not all certain he should remove him then, as he was pleased with his management of the office, which was of more interest to the administration than the mere act of finding a place for an important office-holder.

When Judge Graham was postmaster general, an innocent youth who mailed a dollar to a lottery concern had it returned to him from the dead letter office. On the envelope containing the letter was the following endorsement in the postmaster-general's handwriting: "Young man, the advance of the postoffice is, if you earn your money, keep it."

Our friends, the independents, are anxiously waiting from day to day for another good republic to be appointed postmaster. But they are anxiously watching and waiting in vain. They get Pearson, but they will not get another. It will be quite plainly seen that Mr. Cleveland broke his backbone of courage to honor civil service, when he appointed Pearson.

England would get the best and of the bargain if it would give a fair bonus to some country to take Canada off its hands. The Canadian treasury having been drained by railroads, the riot rebellion and serious falling off in the revenue, the Deputy Minister of Finance, Mr. Courtney, and Sir Leonard Tilley, are en route for England to negotiate a $60,000,000. Canada is even more worthless to England than Alaska is to the United States.

A short time ago the Gazette published some statistics tending to show that marriage was an important restraining influence so far as the commission of crimes is concerned. Added to this we have the experience of Warden Finn, of the New York Penitentiary, who finds that a large majority of criminals are unmarried. "The usual age," he says, "in which men commit crime is from eighteen to twenty-five," and he believes that more early marriages would lessen the number of crimes. Certainly his experience entitles him to speak. Nobody, not even Mr. Finn, believes that marriage would wholly do away with criminals, but there is no denying that home influences would prevent many a man from going wrong.

The telegraph brings information regarding the suit brought by Edward M. Knox, the New York hatter, against a commercial agency on the charge of libel. The agency was requested by persons interested, to give the standing of Knox, and it described him as "a figure-head for his father with no standing whatever," that he was "lost," "a politician" and "had married a Brooklyn concert singer." The charge is that the report injured the plaintiff's business. The agency made answer, of course, that the information was given confidentially to their customers who asked for it, and that it was a private communication in law. The courts have held in nearly all such cases that such information is confidential to the patron of the agency. But one of the chief points made in the complaint of the plaintiff, was that a libelous reference was made to Knox's wife, as being a "Brooklyn concert singer." If Brooklyn concert singers are usually in disrepute and it is immoral to be one, the plaintiff may have a strong case against the agency. The public will be curious to know what the court will do with that reference to Knox's wife. By the way, Knox's father was the poor hatter who paid $640 for the first choice of seats at the first concert given by Jenny Lind in this country. It was an extravagant price for a concert seat, but it made Knox famous and rich.

The democrats in Milwaukee are all "broke up" over the appointment of George H. Paul as postmaster at that city. One democrat who felt himself outraged by the appointment telegraphed General Briggs: "Take your democrat party and go to— with it." It is charged that Mr. Paul aided in the defeat of Deuster last fall, and if this charge be true, Mr. Paul did his party and the cause of common decency a splendid service; for Deuster ought to represent any constituency in congress. Then another democrat whose head is quite sore makes the statement that when Mr. Anderson was trying to raise his $10,000 campaign fund prior to the opening of the Cleveland canvass, prominent democrats were asked for $100 subscriptions, Paul put his name down for $100, but when payment of the money was asked, he declined to pay and never did. It is said that the democrat county committee will investigate Mr. Paul's alleged connection with the republican party last fall and ascertain to what extent he contributed to the success of Van Selsick.

The fact is, all the opposition to Mr. Paul is based on the ground that he is too clean a man for the Milwaukee democracy. He has always been a democrat, but a consistent one. He is a gentleman of broad culture and high personal propriety, and would not stoop to do a mean political act any more than he would do an immoral act. He is a clean cut man and it is an honor to him that he represents the better element of his party.

NOT PERFECTLY HAPPY YET.

Double-Expressed as to the Penitentiary Institution of the Russian-English Dispute. London, May 15.—The Times intimates that men of all parties are agreed in thinking that "something is wrong," or, in other words, that a peaceable arrangement with Russia is even now not certain. This warning by The Times probably signifies that a hint has got out of the contents of the dispatches brought here by Cordie Stephen and that they charge the Russians with aggression and with a violation of the letters and telegrams of correspondence of the daily papers. The especially inspired Daily News strongly asserts this. There is an official denial of the statement that Russia has agreed to preliminary agreement for the settlement of the frontier question. The admiralty commanded the order permitting the discharge of the naval reserves. Russia has never relaxed her warlike preparations. She now announces her intention to establish a postal service to Merv and Herat via Peshawar.

London, May 15.—In the house of commons Gladstone was asked whether Russia had signed a declaration of the agreement between Lord Granville, Baron de Staal, and other English and Russian representatives, providing for a frontier commission. Gladstone replied that he did not know whether or not Mr. de Staal's decision in the matter had arrived in London. He further stated that negotiations between the two governments were still in progress and that the latest telegram from the secretary of state indicated that Russia was maintaining observing the agreement not to make further advances on the Afghan frontier. The evidence of wide differences of opinion among the members of the cabinet as regards the terms of the agreement, regarding to the terms of the agreement, Sir Charles Dillke and Mr. Chamberlain favor a total repeal of the measure, while Sir Vernon Harcourt, Lord Hartington and Lord Dufferin are in favor of the measure. Sir Charles Dillke and Mr. Chamberlain favor a total repeal of the measure, while Sir Vernon Harcourt, Lord Hartington and Lord Dufferin are in favor of the measure.

DAGGER AND REVOLVER

Used by a Couple of New York Gamblers with Fatal Effect.

New York, May 15.—"Larry" O'Brien, a well-known politician and gambler, during an altercation Thursday evening on the corner of Twenty-seventh street and Broadway, was stabbed in the abdomen and probably fatally wounded by a gambler named George Truman, of 135 West Twentieth street. From what could be learned of the affray, it appears that O'Brien and Truman had some words early in the evening concerning a gambling transaction. At 8:30 the two men met at the corner of Broadway and Twenty-seventh street, and during an altercation Truman drew a large dirk-knife with an eight-inch blade and stabbed O'Brien in the abdomen, inflicting a terrible wound. O'Brien drew his revolver and fired two shots, both of which took effect, one in the right arm and the other in the back. Both men were taken to the New York hospital. The affray caused the greatest excitement on Broadway, where both men were well known. Late Thursday night O'Brien was reported to be in a critical condition.

ANOTHER BAD NIGHT.

Gen. Grant's Improvement Checked, but He Still Keeps at Work.

New York, May 15.—Thursday morning Gen. Grant awoke feeling a little better, but not at all improved in his general condition. Dr. Douglas' statements imply that the general is not improving in the ratio as hitherto. The weather has a very depressing influence. Dr. Douglas saw Gen. Grant in the afternoon. When the doctor left the house he said: "The disease is still there, of course, but the improved pain of the last day has been not so much the result of an increase in the disease as it has been of a natural complication induced by the right of winter of this week. The general is better than he has been, and has been working easily upon his body."

What Has Become of Van Gelder? James C. Van Gelder, receiving editor of the Union National Bank, 94 Wall street, New York, has been missing since Friday, May 8, from his home, 80 Jones street, this city. The bank officers say his accounts are all right, and that they received a note on Monday from a woman in Hoboken, who did not sign her name, offering for a money payment to reveal Van Gelder's whereabouts. Before a messenger could reach the address given in the note the woman left. Van Gelder was a partner and not of extravagant habits. His wife thinks his mind is affected by overwork, but others are less charitable in their views. Van Gelder's father disappeared five years ago in a similar manner, and after a year's travel in the west returned home. The family occupies a high social position.

HOWARD THE HERO.

UNCLE SAM'S REPRESENTATIVE WITH GEN. MIDDLETON

Covers Himself with Glory and Recovers Most Flattering Notice—Latest from the Seat of Trouble—Held Declared To Be Insane.

WINNEPEG, May 15.—More particulars are arriving of the fight at Batouche. The brilliant dash of the volunteers, ending in the utter routing and dispersing of the rebels, is fully confirmed. Col. Stranahan led the infantry into the attack and gallantly led the Royal Grenadiers in the bayonet charge. The rebels fought with great pluck, but could not resist the impetuous rush of the volunteers, who fought like veterans. The general several times visited the seat of the war. Mr. Howard, one of Riel's council, was found chained. He said it was done because he would not consent to Riel's authority. The rebel loss is exceedingly heavy. Riel and Dumont have escaped down the river.

The general has taken the rebels at every point and they are giving themselves up. The surrender of the rebels is expected to be followed by the speedy capture of Riel and Dumont. Many of the rebels were seen on the river westward during the night. Others are still in the pits to the north. Twelve rebels are said to have been killed. Our prisoner says Riel is urging his men to stand fast, as they are now at the mercy of Heaven if they are killed now. He also tells them that if they are captured they will be treated as prisoners of war.

Probably no single man connected with the forces now crushing the half-breed rebellion in the northwest does Canada owe more gratitude as to Capt. Howard, the American who came to the north as an agent of a Connecticut firm of Gatling gun manufacturers. The manner in which he managed the gun was for him the personal praise of Gen. Middleton and Lord Minto, who has arrived here on his way to Ottawa from the front. He speaks enthusiastically of the gallant American officer. In the first charge on the rebel rifle pits at Batouche Saturday a body of rebels surprised the battery and would have captured two of the guns had not Howard wheeled a Gatling round in front of the battery and poured a deadly shower of lead on the advancing rebels, who quickly turned and fled to the bank for shelter. Many other incidents of his bravery are told, and in fact scarcely a press dispatch has been received that does not contain some reference to him.

The Gatling, as any one who has seen a Gatling in war, is a formidable weapon in war, was in Howard's experienced hands a perfect engine of death, equal to a whole battalion of muskets. Howard has been represented in the papers as a United States officer, but this is incorrect. He assumes no military standing, but is simply representing the New Haven manufacturers. He has, however, a record as a fighter, having been two years in the war as a captain in a Connecticut regiment. He resigned his commission at the close of the war and went west and spent five years with Gen. Custer fighting Indians. It is said that he is at present connected with the Connecticut State guards. He has all the appearance and bearing of a military man. His age is 40, his height five feet nine inches. He is rather lively built, but strong and hardy, possessed of piercing black eyes, dark hair and mustache, large nose and mouth—in fact, all the characteristics of a warrior. He appears to be, as a veteran officer said, "a typical American officer—a dasher, a brave fellow, who would as soon fight as eat." So this is it, the man who has earned for himself a suitable recognition to be made by the government for his valuable services as the capture of Batouche.

Riel, Dumont and other prominent leaders ran down along the eastern bank and crossed in a boat and strook out across the country in a northerly direction. It is believed they are on their way to join Big Bear and Poundmaker. Every effort will be made to capture them. If the mounted police who were stationed at Prince Albert have not gone so already.

Is Riel a Lunatic?

HUMPHREY, N. W. T., May 13.—Camp nine miles from Batouche, May 8. A half-breed deserter and traitor came into camp Thursday night and reported that Riel is crazy and has issued new religious decrees and changes the days of the week. He says Riel has 500 half-breeds and Indians, and hopes for help from Big Bear, to whom he sent a messenger at once. Dumont commanded early in the morning with a number of half-breeds and Indians, but late by noon, and forty-four were all that were in the ravine for the rest of the day. The rebel loss was six killed and eleven wounded. The rebels intended attacking our force at Clarke's Crossing, but their plans were not perfected in time.

Ran into the Ice Fields.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 15.—The British steamship Clutha arrived at this port Thursday in a damaged condition. The vessel had two of her forward planks broken and under the engine-room, forward and her forward compartment filled with water. Capt. Maco stated that when off the banks of Newfoundland, in latitude 45 degrees north, longitude 47 west, he encountered a heavy field of floating ice which caused the damage and that for three days his steamer was beset by large fields of ice and many icebergs.

Trial of Young Claverius.

RICHMOND, Va., May 15.—The testimony in the case of Claverius, charged with the murder of Lillian Fannie Madison, did not disclose any new features Thursday, except that counsel for defense excepted by whole sale to all the evidence that tended to prove that the watch-boy was found inside of the reservoir grounds. This is an important link in the evidence, as it is claimed that the prosecution can prove the key to be the property of Claverius. The court overruled objections, and three witnesses proved that the key was found in the reservoir grounds, and afterward fully identified the key produced in court as the same key they found. Claverius looked badly and it is predicted that he will break down before the trial is over.

Lord Sherbrooke's Poems.

LONDON, May 15.—Lord Sherbrooke, whose name as one of England's leading statesmen was earned when he was known as Robert Lowe, has published a volume which he names "Poems of a Lifetime," which the critics, with great unanimity, describe as a mass of sonnets, not to say idiotic, rubbish. Lord Sherbrooke is 74 years old, and recently scandalized society by the announcement of his approaching marriage to his amanuensis, Miss Sney, though his first wife had been dead but a few months.

Gave a Million for Charity.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 15.—The will of the late John Holmes of this city was filed for probate Thursday. During her long life she had made generous contributions to public and private charities. Over $1,000,000 is thus disbursed.
